

Posted on: Aug 25, 2011

Edifier Prisma:

While Edifier says the Prisma resembles the Sydney Opera House, I'd have to disagree - the subwoofer is clearly a disused Storm Trooper helmet. In action, the unit pumps out some great sound and its auxiliary input jack means it can play music from any audio host. There is a separate bass control on the back of the subwoofer if you feel the urge to crank it up and shake your desk contents onto the floor. On top is a red 'halo' power and volume button which makes it easy to control your tunes while it's on the dark side...

Edifier Prisma

While Edifier says the Prisma resembles the Sydney Opera House, I'd have to disagree - the subwoofer is clearly a disused Storm Trooper helmet. In action, the unit pumps out some great sound and its auxiliary input jack means it can play music from any audio host. There is a separate bass control on the back of the subwoofer if you feel the urge to crank it up and shake your desk contents onto the floor. On top is a red 'halo' power and volume button which makes it easy to control your tunes while it's on the dark side...

CONTACT EDIFIER ONLINE bit.ly/fjz5vq
PRICE $129.95

Logitech Webcam C170

The latest web cam from Logitech has been designed to easily clip onto any notebook or desktop. It features Logitech's Fluid Crystal technology so your Skype videos will be much smoother, with a sharper picture and better colour. The web cam also has built-in automatic noise-reduction so background noise doesn't interfere with calls. Keep in mind it's only noise-reduction, not noise interpretation so it won't help the international time difference. You know the one - when your friend is incoherent and just getting home from the pub, while you're trying to head into the office.

CONTACT LOGITECH ONLINE bit.ly/foixhd
PRICE $29.95

EDIFIER[®]
—a passion for sound™

www.Edifier.US.com