

Aurora Reviewed by Gadget and Technology News.com

Posted on: Apr 08, 2011

Edifier Aurora MP300 Plus Speaker System – Exclusive Review

We all know how difficult it is to find a set of speakers which look and sound great and will not leave a large hole in our bank accounts. But the Edifier Aurora MP300 Plus speaker system could just be an answer to all your worries. They deliver an exceptional sound quality at an affordable price.

We had a chance to it to save you all the leg-work and we can report that we were not disappointed. It comes in a range of vivid colours (we had the mighty pink and it looked awesome!) as well as the customary black. The three-piece set only takes up small amount of room, so should fit even on the most cluttered desk. But let's get to the important bit: the sound you get is huge!

We tested it out against some big R'n'B and Rock tunes and it stood tall and delivered amazingly natural sound time after time. We also played some podcasts to check how it would deal with just human voice and once again the resulting sounds were clear to hear even at a low volume. You no longer have to subject your ears to tinny noises from your desktop audio system. It puts to shame Gear4 sets, which are so popular as budget buys.

I was a little surprised, though, to find that the volume controls were regular click buttons and not touch sensitive ones. Aside from that the product exceeded our expectations at all levels. It is one of the best speaker systems we've ever heard (and we get to hear a lot!).

Written by: Ewa Grzybek

Edifier

www.Edifier.US.com
www.ESIDistribution.com